SERMON RECAP

Matt Allman walked us through the Heal My Broken series by sharing what he plans to teach his own kids about money, starting with five practical truths straight from Scripture. He reminded us that consumer debt functions like a form of slavery, while our greatest weapon against financial anxiety is the simple, life-giving power of contentment. True wealth is built patiently, a little at a time, reminding us that we are merely managers of what belongs to God rather than the ultimate owners. When we shift our posture to gratitude and embrace generosity, we create a tangible staircase where God's kingdom meets the earth.

GET STARTED

- Where did you learn about money management? At home from a parent? In school during a class you took on finances/budgeting? In a class offered at your church? Or did you just have to learn over time?

TAKE IT IN

- What encouraged and/or challenged you from the message this week? Why?

TALK IT OVER

Have someone read Proverbs 22:7, someone read 1 Timothy 6:6-8, someone else read Proverbs 13:11, and finally someone read Psalm 24:1 out loud.

- Proverbs 22:7 states that the borrower is a slave to the lender, highlighting how consumer debt creates financial bondage and stress. Reflect on your own financial habits and discuss practical steps your household is currently taking (or would like to start taking) to pursue greater freedom. How does viewing debt as a form of slavery rather than just a normal financial tool change your perspective on everyday purchases and loans?
- In 1 Timothy 6:6-8, Paul teaches that godliness with contentment is great gain, serving as our greatest weapon against financial brokenness. Share an experience when a simple, low-cost activity brought you deep joy, and discuss how you can cultivate a spirit of contentment in your daily life. Why do you think advertising and modern culture make true contentment so difficult to maintain?

- Proverbs 13:11 reminds us that whoever gathers money little by little makes it grow, emphasizing patience over get-rich-quick schemes. Discuss how embracing the principle of compounding interest can reshape your approach to saving and planning for the future. In what ways does the temptation to find quick financial shortcuts distract us from steady, faithful stewardship?
- Psalm 24:1 affirms that the earth is the Lord's and everything in it, which means we are simply managers of our resources rather than owners. Discuss how recognizing God as the ultimate provider helps dismantle greed and fosters a lifestyle of gratitude. How does shifting from an ownership mindset to a managerial mindset change the way you view your income, career, and possessions?
- Matt describes generosity as the staircase where God's kingdom meets earth, making His reality tangible to others through acts like the Raise the Roof campaign. How have you personally experienced or witnessed generosity acting as a powerful reflection of God's love to someone in need? What is one practical way your group or family can practice intentional generosity this month?

LIVE IT OUT

This week, Matt reminded us of the Biblical truth about debt and how it can enslave us. What steps can you begin to take to align your finances more with God's teaching and begin to work toward living a debt free life going forward?

Pray: "Lord, help us learn how to walk faithfully according to your Word as it pertains to our finances. May we break free from the burden of consumer debt by recognizing it as a form of slavery rather than a normal way of life. May we cultivate a deep, holy contentment rooted in the everyday gifts You have provided. May we embrace our true identity as managers rather than owners of everything we have, letting gratitude reshape our hearts. May our generosity serve as a living bridge where God's Kingdom meets the real, tangible needs of the world around us. In Jesus' Name, Amen!"

MEMORIZE:

"Yet true godliness with contentment is itself great wealth. After all, we brought nothing with us when we came into the world, and we can't take anything with us when we leave it. So if we have enough food and clothing, let us be content." 1 Timothy 6:6-8 (NLT)
